Old Town Clinic

The Clinic

The Oncology Clinic at Old Town Clinic in Wroclaw, Poland concentrates its activities on oncological patients who like to know more about their disease, want to participate in the treatment process, and want take full advantage of the latest medical achievements.

With its focus on cancer prevention, the clinic is specialized in dermoscopy examinations with digital archiving, which is currently considered the best method of skin cancer follow-up and prevention, but supplemented by diagnostic biopsies and active treatment when relevant.

In the treatment room, diagnosed skin lesions are typically removed surgically. All treatments are carried out in accordance with the best oncological practice, and patients will get reliable histopathological result within a few days after the procedure.

The Expert

Jacek Calik, M.D, PhD is a renowned expert and specialist in the diagnosis and treatment of skin cancer in Poland.

Over the last decade, Dr. Calik has become a leading authority in treating skin cancers using modern methods, including chemotherapy, molecular therapy or immunotherapy. In parallel he has been running a video-dermoscopy laboratory dealing with the early diagnosis of skin diseases in the Lower Silesian Cancer Center in Wroclaw.

The Dermatology HIFU opportunity

Traditional methods for skin cancer therapy are characterized by relatively high rates of recurrences and side effects, such as scarring, hair-loss and hypopigmentation. The TOOsonix HIFU technology, in contrast, provides an unprecedented accurate treatment modality with a potential for improved efficacy and low levels of side effects. The device combines diagnosis and therapy due to its integrated dermoscope and can therefore facilitate an increased patient throughput for the clinic.

A TOOsonix System ONE-M has been installed at The Oncology Clinic at Old Town Clinic in the autumn of 2020, and experimental treatments will be initiated shortly thereafter. Results and cases will be published in peer-reviewed medical journals.
